

Abstract

A method and system are provided for implementing a user interface in a client management tool. A user interface allows a user to select a number of polling agent configurations in the client management tool. Another interface allows a user to 5 issue and modify various client attributes without having to terminate a measurement. A further user interface allows a user to archive client management data within the client management tool.